COLLECTION for HURRICANE FLORENCE: Oct. 27/28:

Hurricane Florence struck the southeastern US, caused remarkable flooding, damaging public infrastructure, homes and agriculture. Their plight now begs for our support of those areas. You may mark your offering “Florence Relief”

Breakfast served 9a-11a; make a morning of it and pitch in to help for an hour before/after Mass with serving or meal prep! Call Suzanne: 610-334-5385.

SCRIPTURE REFLECTION: Jesus’ invitation to follow him on the path to true wisdom exceeds any treasure this world can offer. Human wisdom and God’s wisdom are often incompatible. We can see an example of that in our Gospel today when Christ tells the young man to give all he has to the poor and follow him. This meant an inversion of the young man’s life from rich to poor in material wealth. What wisdom do we follow and what wealth do we value most? In our first reading from the book of Wisdom Solomon declares he prefers wisdom to power and wealth. Would that he chose wisdom over power and wealth all the time he ruled. His people would have been better off and he would not have formed treaties with pagan nations and abandoned the covenant by building pagan shrines as his kingdom grew weaker by the time he died and was divided among his sons.

Please Pray for these persons serving our Nation.

PROLIFE: "Not all values are of equal weight. Some are more fundamental than others. ...I wish to emphasize that no earthly value is more fundamental than human life itself. Human life is the condition for enjoying freedom and all other values. Consequently, if one must choose between protecting or serving lesser human values that depend upon life for their existence and life itself, human life must take precedence."~ the Late Cardinal Joseph Bernadin, Archbishop of Chicago

REFLECTION... by Rev. Leonard N. Peterson
Do you remember Walter Mitty? He is that fictional character in James Thurber's short story "The Secret Life of Walter Mitty," first published in The New Yorker on March 18, 1939. The story was made into a movie in 1947 starring Danny Kaye, with a remake starring Ben Stiller in 2013.

Mitty is a daydreamer. He can in turn imagine himself as a wartime pilot, an ER surgeon, and a devil-may-care killer. There is something of Mitty in each of us, especially when we watch the TV game show winner snatch the jackpot prize. Or watch those news reports of the latest lottery winner. "If only it were me! What I could do with that money!"

That last is the key word: "money." A wag once opined that "Money isn't everything but it's way ahead of whatever is in second place!" In a materialistic culture like ours, it's so easy to forget and sideline the ideal set forth by Jesus. We're in good company, you might think, as you consider that even St. Peter, our first pope, wanted to know from Jesus exactly what he and the other Apostles would "get out of" their having given up "everything and followed you." Jesus then promises a hundredfold of good things that Peter lists. Note too that Jesus also promises "persecution." Some of that will inevitably follow someone who contradicts the prevailing earthbound philosophy of wealth.

In this matter, we have to remember that St. Paul wrote in his letter to Timothy that "the love of money is the root of all evil," not money itself. (I Timothy 6:10) Money is really just a medium of exchange, and is necessary for us to acquire and maintain our needs for food, clothing and shelter. It's when money turns into a status symbol; or as the source of power selfishly-wielded; or as influence that erects a high wall between "us" and "them" that sin enters the picture.

Certainly there is great good that generous philanthropy practiced by wealthy people does. Funds and foundations set up by individuals and/or families support all sorts of good causes that make life better— dare I say "richer"? —for all of us.

As a counterbalance to the rich young man of the gospel, we learn of King Solomon, who "deemed riches nothing in comparison with her (Wisdom)." There will always be good examples of wise people who never daydream selfishly but take their good fortune in life as a gift to be shared.

"Although Walter Mitty's story has its humorous elements, there is a darker and more significant message underlying the text, leading to a more tragic interpretation of the character. Even in his heroic daydreams, Mitty does not triumph, several fantasies being interrupted before the final one sees Mitty dying bravely in front of a firing squad. In the brief snatches of reality that punctuate Mitty's fantasies the reader meets well-meaning but insensitive strangers who inadvertently rob Mitty of his remaining dignity." (Wikipedia)

None of this means that daydreams are always and everywhere bad things. St. Ignatius daydreamed of himself being like saints Francis of Assisi and Anthony of Padua. He went on to found the Jesuits!

There are hundreds of quips about riches. I like the following one because you have to think after you laugh. "Once there was the guy who loved a girl so much that he worshiped the very ground her father discovered oil on!"
